VEDRANTA BANK

Payroll, Insurance and Employee Wellbeing Guide

Document ID: VDB-HR-003

Category: Employee Benefits

Version: 1.0 As of: 17 October 2026

Headquarters: Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu, India

FICTIONAL DOCUMENT FOR RAG DEVELOPMENT AND TESTING

This document describes a fictional bank created for a demonstration knowledge base. It is not evidence of a real institution, licence, financial product, employment offer, or binding policy. All bank-specific figures are synthetic unless explicitly identified as actual legal requirements.

Document Control and Master Facts

Field	Controlled value
Bank name	Vedranta Bank
Headquarters	Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu, India
Institution type	Fictional Indian commercial financial bank
Customer segments	retail customers, small and medium enterprises (SMEs), corporate clients, agricultural customers, rural customers, and eligible institutions
Owner	Office of Policy and Knowledge Management
Version / as-of	1.0 / 17 October 2026
Contact placeholders	1800-000-VED (fictional demonstration number; not a real helpline); support@vedranta.example (fictional reserved example domain)
Standard customer service hours	Monday–Friday, 9:30 a.m.–5:00 p.m.; Saturday, 9:30 a.m.–1:00 p.m.; Sundays and bank holidays closed, except digital self-service channels
Dataset status	Fictional; for RAG development and testing only

Source precedence

Applicable law and current regulatory directions prevail. Current approved product schedules, signed customer agreements, formal sanction letters, insurer plan documents, and approved HR terms govern their respective subjects. This general document summarizes rather than overrides them.

RAG instruction

Index content with document ID, section title, version, effective date, category, and access level. Treat all contacts and product figures in this synthetic corpus as fictional test values.

Contents and Retrieval Map

The following pages are organized as focused sections so retrieval can identify the most relevant passage. The section title should be stored as metadata for each extracted chunk.

01. Purpose and scope
02. Payroll calendar
03. Salary components
04. Payslip access
05. Payroll cutoff
06. Bank account details
07. Payroll discrepancy reporting
08. Tax declarations
09. Statutory deductions
10. Variable pay
11. Expense reimbursement
12. Insurance overview
13. Insurance enrolment
14. Dependent eligibility
15. Cashless treatment
16. Reimbursement claims
17. Preauthorization
18. Claim rejection
19. Policy exclusions
20. Accident cover
21. Life cover and beneficiaries
22. Wellbeing support
23. Confidentiality of support
24. Learning allowance
25. Learning claim workflow
26. Certification and exam fees
27. Travel reimbursement
28. Meal and transport claims
29. Employee banking offers
30. Retirement benefits
31. Gratuity and final settlement
32. Benefits while on leave
33. New joiner checklist
34. Life-event updates
35. Overpayment recovery
36. Payroll privacy
37. Fraudulent claims
38. Wellbeing and workload
39. Workplace accommodation

40. Common question: payday
41. Common question: medical limit
42. Common question: learning allowance
43. Common question: missing salary
44. Roles and accountability
45. Policy precedence
46. Review and fictional-data notice

When answering a question, retrieve the narrowest relevant section and check its context. Do not combine unrelated policy details merely because they occur in the same PDF.

Purpose and scope

Explains payroll support, benefits administration, insurance, and wellbeing arrangements in the fictional bank. Employment terms, insurer documents, and law prevail.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about purpose and scope. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Purpose and scope; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 01 | Version: 1.0

Payroll calendar

The illustrative monthly payroll is processed on the last working day of each month, subject to banking holidays and approved payroll controls.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about payroll calendar. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Payroll calendar; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 02 | Version: 1.0

Salary components

Compensation may include basic pay, allowances, variable pay, and authorized deductions as specified in the employee's offer and salary statement.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about salary components. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Salary components; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 03 | Version: 1.0

Payslip access

Payslips are available through the approved secure HR/payroll system. They must not be sent to an unverified address or discussed in public chat.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about payslip access. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Payslip access; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 04 | Version: 1.0

Payroll cutoff

Changes submitted after the approved monthly cutoff may be reflected in a later cycle. HR should publish the actual cutoff date each month.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about payroll cutoff. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Payroll cutoff; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 05 | Version: 1.0

Bank account details

Employees update salary account details through verified HR procedures. Changes require identity checks and audit logging.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about bank account details. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Bank account details; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 06 | Version: 1.0

Payroll discrepancy reporting

Employees should identify the payslip period, disputed item, and supporting information. Payroll investigates without asking for account passwords or OTPs.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about payroll discrepancy reporting. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Payroll discrepancy reporting; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 07 | Version: 1.0

Tax declarations

Employees submit declarations and evidence by the current deadline. Tax outcomes depend on current law and individual facts.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about tax declarations. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Tax declarations; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 08 | Version: 1.0

Statutory deductions

Provident fund, professional tax, tax withholding, and other deductions depend on eligibility, location, current law, and the employee's circumstances.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about statutory deductions. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Statutory deductions; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 09 | Version: 1.0

Variable pay

Bonus or incentive payments are governed by the relevant plan, performance criteria, approval, and applicable law. No discretionary payment is guaranteed unless documented.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about variable pay. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Variable pay; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 10 | Version: 1.0

Expense reimbursement

Reimbursement requires eligible business purpose, pre-approval where required, receipts, and submission within the approved period.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about expense reimbursement. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Expense reimbursement; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 11 | Version: 1.0

Insurance overview

The illustrative group medical plan has an annual family limit of ■5,00,000 for eligible permanent employees, subject to the active insurer policy.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about insurance overview. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Insurance overview; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 12 | Version: 1.0

Insurance enrolment

Employees must complete enrolment and dependent details within the stated plan window. Coverage begins only as defined by the insurer.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about insurance enrolment. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Insurance enrolment; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 13 | Version: 1.0

Dependent eligibility

Eligible family members must meet the plan's relationship and documentation rules. HR should verify the current insurer schedule.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about dependent eligibility. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Dependent eligibility; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 14 | Version: 1.0

Cashless treatment

Cashless access depends on network status, preauthorization, covered treatment, and insurer/administrator rules; it is not guaranteed for every provider.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about cashless treatment. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Cashless treatment; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 15 | Version: 1.0

Reimbursement claims

Claims require documents listed by the insurer, such as bills, prescriptions, discharge summaries, and claim forms where applicable.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about reimbursement claims. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Reimbursement claims; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 16 | Version: 1.0

Preauthorization

Planned treatment may require prior authorization under the insurer's process. Employees should confirm requirements before admission when possible.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about preauthorization. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Preauthorization; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 17 | Version: 1.0

Claim rejection

If a claim is rejected, review the written reason and policy wording, then use the insurer's appeal or clarification route.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about claim rejection. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Claim rejection; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 18 | Version: 1.0

Policy exclusions

Exclusions, waiting periods, sub-limits, and non-covered expenses are defined by the insurer, not this summary.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about policy exclusions. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Policy exclusions; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 19 | Version: 1.0

Accident cover

Where active, accident cover is subject to the insured event definition, exclusions, sum insured, and employee eligibility in the policy certificate.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about accident cover. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Accident cover; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 20 | Version: 1.0

Life cover and beneficiaries

Where offered, life cover and beneficiary designation follow the active plan and applicable law. Employees should review nominations after major life events.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about life cover and beneficiaries. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Life cover and beneficiaries; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 21 | Version: 1.0

Wellbeing support

The fictional program may include confidential counselling or wellbeing resources through an approved provider. Live contact information must be verified separately.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about wellbeing support. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Wellbeing support; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 22 | Version: 1.0

Confidentiality of support

Personal wellbeing information is restricted and should not be disclosed to managers except where legally required or necessary under approved safety procedures.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about confidentiality of support. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Confidentiality of support; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 23 | Version: 1.0

Learning allowance

Eligible permanent employees may request up to ■20,000 per year for pre-approved role-relevant learning, within budget and evidence requirements.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about learning allowance. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Learning allowance; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 24 | Version: 1.0

Learning claim workflow

Submit the course purpose, cost, provider, approval, completion evidence, and receipt through the approved HR workflow.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about learning claim workflow. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Learning claim workflow; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 25 | Version: 1.0

Certification and exam fees

Reimbursement is limited to approved credentials and plan rules. Retakes or optional materials may be excluded unless approved.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about certification and exam fees. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Certification and exam fees; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 26 | Version: 1.0

Travel reimbursement

Use the approved travel policy for class, limits, receipts, mileage, lodging, and exceptions. This guide does not create a separate travel entitlement.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about travel reimbursement. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Travel reimbursement; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 27 | Version: 1.0

Meal and transport claims

Location-specific support requires an approved scheme. Employees should not assume a universal allowance without checking the current schedule.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about meal and transport claims. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Meal and transport claims; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 28 | Version: 1.0

Employee banking offers

Any employee banking concession must appear in a current approved product schedule. Staff are subject to the same verification and underwriting controls unless lawful terms state otherwise.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about employee banking offers. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Employee banking offers; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 29 | Version: 1.0

Retirement benefits

Statutory and employer retirement arrangements depend on law, eligibility, and current plan documents. HR should provide the correct official reference.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about retirement benefits. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Retirement benefits; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 30 | Version: 1.0

Gratuity and final settlement

Eligibility, calculation, and timing follow applicable law and employment terms. Final settlement also considers lawful adjustments and returned assets.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about gratuity and final settlement. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Gratuity and final settlement; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 31 | Version: 1.0

Benefits while on leave

Insurance and benefit continuation depend on plan rules, employment status, and law. Confirm with HR before making a case-specific statement.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about benefits while on leave. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Benefits while on leave; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 32 | Version: 1.0

New joiner checklist

Verify payroll details, tax declarations, benefit enrolment, dependents, emergency contact, nominee details, and secure HR access.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about new joiner checklist. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: New joiner checklist; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 33 | Version: 1.0

Life-event updates

Marriage, birth, dependent changes, or other relevant events may require timely updates to insurer and beneficiary records.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about life-event updates. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Life-event updates; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 34 | Version: 1.0

Overpayment recovery

Any payroll overpayment is reviewed, explained, and recovered only through lawful, documented procedures with appropriate communication.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about overpayment recovery. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Overpayment recovery; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 35 | Version: 1.0

Payroll privacy

Salary data is confidential. Managers should access only the information necessary for authorized duties.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about payroll privacy. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Payroll privacy; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 36 | Version: 1.0

Fraudulent claims

Suspected false claims are reviewed fairly, with evidence and appropriate employee response. A suspicion is not itself a final finding.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about fraudulent claims. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Fraudulent claims; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 37 | Version: 1.0

Wellbeing and workload

Managers should monitor workload, encourage breaks, and refer employees to available support without stigmatizing them.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about wellbeing and workload. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Wellbeing and workload; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 38 | Version: 1.0

Workplace accommodation

Requests related to health or disability are handled through HR with confidentiality and individualized assessment.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about workplace accommodation. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Workplace accommodation; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 39 | Version: 1.0

Common question: payday

The illustrative payroll date is the last working day of each month; actual exceptions should be confirmed in the current payroll calendar.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about common question: payday. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Common question: payday; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 40 | Version: 1.0

Common question: medical limit

The illustrative ■5,00,000 family limit is subject to insurer terms, eligibility, exclusions, and claim approval.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about common question: medical limit. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Common question: medical limit; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 41 | Version: 1.0

Common question: learning allowance

The illustrative ■20,000 limit requires pre-approval and applies to eligible role-relevant learning, not unrestricted cash.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about common question: learning allowance. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Common question: learning allowance; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 42 | Version: 1.0

Common question: missing salary

Raise a secure payroll ticket with the pay period and disputed component; do not send credentials or sensitive bank access information.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about common question: missing salary. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Common question: missing salary; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 43 | Version: 1.0

Roles and accountability

HR owns benefits administration; payroll owns salary processing; the insurer decides claims under its policy; employees provide accurate records.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about roles and accountability. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Roles and accountability; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 44 | Version: 1.0

Policy precedence

Applicable law, employment agreement, active insurance certificate, and current approved benefit schedules prevail over this guide.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about policy precedence. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Policy precedence; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 45 | Version: 1.0

Review and fictional-data notice

HR reviews this guide annually and after plan changes. All figures are fictional dataset parameters and not a real employer's offer.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about review and fictional-data notice. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Review and fictional-data notice; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 46 | Version: 1.0

Purpose and scope — Decision checklist

Explains payroll support, benefits administration, insurance, and wellbeing arrangements in the fictional bank. Employment terms, insurer documents, and law prevail. Use the checklist to confirm scope, eligibility, required evidence, approval authority, and communication duties. If any prerequisite is missing, do not treat the request as complete.

Operational guidance

For this topic, staff or the chatbot should first identify the customer's or employee's actual question, confirm the relevant product or policy scope, and consult the current approved source. The document is a general guide and should not be used to infer missing eligibility, rates, dates, approvals, or account-specific facts.

Recommended handling steps

1. Identify the request type and the information needed to answer it.
2. Check the current policy version, effective date, and relevant customer or employee category.
3. Explain the process in plain language and distinguish general guidance from a decision on an individual case.
4. If verification or an authorized system is required, direct the user to that approved route.
5. Record or cite the relevant source and escalate ambiguity rather than inventing an answer.

Examples and exception handling

Example: a user asks about purpose and scope — decision checklist. The assistant provides the relevant general rule, explains any condition or exception in the source, and avoids asserting a personalized outcome without authorized evidence. If the source is silent or conflicting, the assistant states that the information requires confirmation and routes the query to the responsible team.

RAG retrieval anchors

Search terms: Purpose and scope — Decision checklist; Vedranta Bank; VDB-HR-003; Employee Benefits; process; eligibility; required documents; approval; exception; escalation; effective date.

Consistency and control note

Use the bank-wide master profile for institutional facts. For rates, fees, leave entitlements, insurance limits, contact placeholders, and service hours, use the centrally agreed figures and the relevant specialized document. A newer approved source or applicable law takes precedence over a general explanatory section.

Document reference: VDB-HR-003 | Section: 47 | Version: 1.0